When you come in here on Friday, I want you to talk to Tommy Roelofs. Now, here's the thing. Get a copy of that curriculum for the air course in this next Far Eastern Intelligence Course. Talk to the Sr. officer of the Naval officers out there in your outfit, go over the course with him, and find out how much they would benefit by this course, then, if they deem it desirable to take it, find out who their immediate superior is in the ONI and then, I'll have Tommy go over and talk to him about the problem of educating these men for the type of work they're going to do. I want to be sure to get the full consent of the Navy before we take any steps for sending them to the Pentagon Bldg to train them. I want to be very careful to do this in view of Gen Bissell's attitude toward the training of translation personnel for the WIRS. I'm sure you understand the problem, and I believe the method outlined above is the best approach.
